GIFT OF STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

Gift of the State of New Hampshire. A Silver Service for the Battleship New Hampshire.

The whole state, from the white-capped mountains that tower in the north to the busy cities that live our industry, would be glad to greet you to show you the pride which the state feels in its worthy representation in the new navy of the United States; to express unaltered allegiance to all this navy stands for at home and abroad.

But as this is impossible, I trust you will accept me as this people's representative; and will understand and appreciate the depth of their sincere regard—a regard which I cannot express adequately in words, but of which we leave you a concrete token in this silver service, fashioned by New Hampshire hands under a New Hampshire roof, the gift of New Hampshire, the state, to New Hampshire, the battleship.

When our state seal was adopted, its emblem, a ship on the stocks, not only typified the launching of the ship of state, but also recognized a leading industry of the state—that of ship building.

And for many years this emblem gave no false impression. During the first half of the nineteenth century, from 1800 to 1850, five hundred vessels were built and launched at Portsmouth—battleships, privateers, East Indiamen, whalers and less important craft. In 1838 this was the home port of 191 vessels. Fourteen privateers sailed from Portsmouth in the first year of the War of 1812.

Those were the days of oak, and for many ships other than those she built herself, New Hampshire forests furnished the material from masthead to keel.

It was here at Portsmouth that the Ranger was fitted out; and when John Paul Jones, in 1777, sailed in her from this port he had good New Hampshire blood in his officers and crew. Here, in 1779, the America was launched, the first ship of the line built on this side of the water. And other battleships followed, the Congress, the Independence, the Washington, the Constitution, the old New Hampshire.

Nor can we ever forget the famous Congress, staunch as those mountains of our state from which she and her worthy successor took their name.

New Hampshire has a glorious part in the nation's naval roll of honor. In the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Civil War and the Spanish War, her sons fought as bravely on the sea as on the land, and won deserved laurels. Three thousand New Hampshire men served in the Galton navy in the states.

A memorial to one of them stands in the state house park at Concord; and a purpose which it serves, as Commodore Perkins would be glad to know, is to remind every passer-by, not only of the personal bravery of the sculptured sailor, but also of the achievements of the navy which he typifies.

It is needless for me to rehearse in this presence the names and the deeds of New Hampshire men in the United States navy. You whom I address are more familiar than I am with the names of our naval heroes.

Silver Service Presented To Battleship New Hampshire This Afternoon

This afternoon at half-past two, the beautiful silver service of sixty-eight pieces, as a gift from the state of New Hampshire to the battleship bearing that name, was officially presented to the vessel by Governor Charles M. Floyd of Manchester.

The event had a most touching significance which stirred the old Granite state and fulfilled the hopes of all interested.

Long before the appointed hour for the ceremonies hundreds of silver crafts began to fill the harbor and

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

The United States navy was born in Portsmouth. Today at Portsmouth the latest and most modern fighting ship of the navy receives from this state of New Hampshire, for which she was named, a gift worthy alike of the state and of the vessel to which it goes.

The beginnings of the navy in Portsmouth called attention to the advantage of having a naval station and shipyard here. Famous vessels have been built here and all the larger vessels of the present navy have been here.

The great battleship New Hampshire on this occasion is anchored in waters teeming richly with historic lore of the navy.

A few hours after the presentation by Governor Charles M. Floyd on board the battleship, the greater part of the fighting force of the navy will drop anchor in the far-away southern harbor of New Zealand's capital city, thousands of miles from where any battleship fleet ever before was seen. The fleet will be there before the reception begins this evening.

There will be many here and many there who will stop a moment to think of the friends so far away.

New Hampshire has furnished men and built ships and taken care of ships for the navy from this battleship. The tribute to the state was a deserved one when the great battleship was named for her.

It is a pleasant time, and those men on the other side of the world would be glad to attend it—those men who will be glad when next their round of duty brings them to Portsmouth.

The state and the city are showing today that the traditions of the past are appreciated in the present and may be taken as the true prophecy of the future.

BIRD-EYE VIEWS

The grand chapter of the New Hampshire order of the Eastern Star is to hold its 18th annual convention at The Wells, in Music hall, Sept. 2.

There is a political rumor to the effect that Charles S. Emerson of Milford will be a candidate for reelection as representative and that in the event of a reelection will be a candidate for speaker of the House of Representatives.

Maine people speak in high praise of Frank E. Guernsey of Dover, whom the Republicans have nominated for successor to the late Congressman Llewellyn Powers of the Fourth district. Mr. Guernsey is forty-one years old, an eminent lawyer, has been prominent in both branches of the Legislature, and is calculated to stand well as the representative of the state which has sent to Congress such men as George Evans, Nathan Clifford, Hannibal Hamlin, Lot M. Morrill, William Pitt Fessenden, James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed and Nelson Dingley.

Berlin has three candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination, George P. Rich, A. M. Stahl and Oliver H. Toothaker.

Congratulations are due three New Hampshire weekly paper editors—to Editor Edward A. Chase of the Plymouth Record on his ability to purchase a building for a home for the paper; to Editor C. B. Chaffin of the Rochester Record on the announcement of his engagement to Miss Jessie Guild of Everett, Mass.; and to Editor Edwin H. Thomas of the Farmington News on the installation of a new electric motor to drive the big press and other machinery.

Get Them Together

Some slight confusion threatens because of the fact that Lord Cromer and Mr. Holson are not engaged in forecasting the same war.—Washington Star.

Let the Good Work Go On

Since the decline of the duel and the discovery of Bright's disease there has been nothing invented which gives off rich young bloods like the seventy-mile-an-hour motor car.—Cleveland Leader.

Bishop Brent's Second Refusal

Although it was hoped that the Bishop of the Philippines would reconsider his refusal to become Bishop of Washington after he had been chosen a second time, his final declaration removes all possibility of his transfer from a remote see to one of conspicuous national influence. Dr. Brent feels, as he has always felt, that his duties to the people of the islands transcend every other consideration. Yet it requires much unselfish devotion to an ideal of service to say nolo episcopatu twice when a diocese like Washington is concerned.—Hartford Courant.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE

All hail the battleship, the great New Hampshire! Namesake of the State!

That's proud to give her welcome! There, With guns and panoply to spare, With everything in steel and brass Reflecting, as a looking-glass, Appears the vessel, while the tides Do gently have her snowy sides.

A huge leviathan of war Whose engines of destruction are The most approved and up-to-date, Is called the namesake of the State. A floating fortress ably planned, By crew of three three hundred manned—

A formidable foe, if e'er In battle met, to do and dare.

Might slumbers in each graceful line, In "shard and rib" does still recline.

The latest innovation known To naval science there is shown: Such power and beauty everywhere Are blended with the finest care. That little less than perfect shows The ship of battle in her prime.

Although a giant of the sea, That's built to meet hostilities, If need be, she can play the role Of peace with friendly smiles; And like the Homers at play, The velvet paw can well display, Her warlike character deepens, Her olive branch controls her sight.

How worthy of the name she bears, New Hampshire proudly declares, The people of this favored State, Who will present her silver plate, Do honor, and earnestly, the ship Will never make a hostile trip, And that, all thoughts of war forgot, She never will fire a hostile shot.

J. E. Moore.

Portsmouth Police Making a Round-up of Suspicious Characters

The police made a good haul of hoboes and suspicious characters today, and began the work by gathering in a bunch of ten at the North End. This gang was found lying off at Noble's Island doing a dangerous stunt of smoking under the big oil tanks at the island.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Issues Death Certificate in Case of a Small Boy at Chester

Medical Examiner A. J. Lange visited Chester on Friday evening, where he made an official examination and issued a death certificate in order to allow the burial of Willie, the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Butler.

The certificate ascribes death to peritonitis following an accident by falling while at boyish sports in the woods.

A physician was called at the time but he was not attended by any medical man for several days before his death and it was found necessary to call a public official in order to procure a death certificate.

A WORD OF TRIBUTE

The passing away of Clydes D. Tenney removes from this community a figure of more than ordinary importance: a man whose labors have honored Portsmouth. Devoted to the art of portrait painting he lived a frugal life that he might give his time exclusively to the activities he loved so well.

Mr. Tenney was a gentlemanly man of a sweet disposition. He was very modest in his estimate of his powers, very faithful in his work. Largely that work was copying and it may be said of it that fidelity to the original was strikingly exemplified in every portrait that he painted. It occasionally one missed in his work the soul looking out through the face there were times when a portrait from his brush reached the highest degree of excellence.

All who knew him were attracted by his engaging personality. He loved art for art's sake. He loved all that was refined and uplifting.

Such a man exercises an influence for good not easily to be overestimated. He will be remembered in this locality as a gentleman whose work carried with it pleasing recollections and whose amiable disposition had endeared him to his many friends.

SMUGGLING IS NOT SUPPRESSEDManchester Political Writer Gets His Dope Supply

It is evident that the smuggling of opium along the New Hampshire border has not been suppressed. Somebody in Manchester has got his dope supply and when well doped he wrote a political letter to the New York World.

The customary unreliability of the dope fiend makes it impossible to tell whether the letter writer's political experience covers thirty-five years or exists only in his imagination.

This campaign freak is worth reading, for it will provoke a laugh, and the physicians assert that it is good for man that he should laugh. So here it is, "signature" and all: To the Editor of The World:

While the ponderous protege of the prohibitionist is gadding at Hot Springs and The World is teetering on the springboard preparing to jump on the band wagon, let me make you a prediction which I hope you will paste over your desk for future reference. Bryan will carry five New England states and get a bigger vote in Vermont than any Democratic candidate since God knows when. In all my thirty-five years in politics I have never seen such an uprising in New England except perhaps that of 1890. If the vote could be taken in August 1908 would not carry a single village or city where there is any manufacturing carried on. Cut wages, no wages and the enhanced cost of living are teaching the people. This may seem like hot air to you, but wait and see.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Portsmouth Citizen Shows How to Cure Them

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary troubles arise in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Portsmouth people testify to permanent cures.

Terence McGrath, of 5 Hanover St., Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I was continually trying medicines for my kidneys but without obtaining any permanent relief. Sometimes I had severe pains across my loins, accompanied by a feeling of dizziness and headaches. I knew my kidneys were the cause of the whole trouble for the secretions plainly showed a large amount of sediment in them. I went to Dr. Doan's drug store and got Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box brought great relief and after I had taken a second box the backache disappeared and the trouble with the kidney secretions was corrected. Anyone having kidney disease in any of its various forms can make no mistake by using Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMurrin Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

AMERICAN SONG in GERMAN CASTLE

ARION SOCIETY ACCORDED DISTINGUISHING HONORS.

THE WARTBURG CASTLE, AT EISENACH, GERMANY

New world immigration to the number of 230 have invaded the old world and have sung in one of the historic castles of Germany and are continuing their tour through various cities of the fatherland, such as Bremen, Berlin and other cities. This unique phalanx of American singers, which started from New York the latter part of June, is under the direction of the Arion Singing society of Brooklyn, and the distinction of singing in the Wartburg castle at Eisenach, Germany, is one which no other American musical organization has ever enjoyed, and one which all might well covet, for this ancient building is famous in history for the singing contests which were held in the twelfth century under the patronage of the Landgrave Hermann I.

The Wartburg is regarded by architects who know as one of the finest secular structures in Germany. It is also distinguished as the refuge of Luther in the turbulent times of the reformation, for he lived there under the name of "Junker George" from May 1, 1521, to March 6, 1522, engaged in the translation of the Bible.

The courtyard and distinguished honor to sing in this historic old building was granted to the Arion society by Grand Duke Wilhelm Ernest of Saxe-Weimar, the present owner of the Wartburg, who occasionally makes his residence there for short periods. The group of buildings forming the castle is situated on the top of a hill, 600 feet above the thrifty city of 132,000. Here looms the beautiful Thuringian forest, which stretches away to the south and east for more than 99 miles. This is one of the most lovely and attractive parts of all Europe. No wonder the picturesque spot was chosen as the site of the grand old castle, which was crumpled into ruins long before America was discovered and has only recently been restored.

The surrounding hills are covered with pine and birch trees. Castle valleys stretch away as far as the eye can reach, and are dotted with their quiet villages. The castle, with its quiet walls and towers, marks the well built hilltop. In every direction are fine vistas, with a variety of color at various times of the year. Steep slopes lead up to the castle on each side and the approach was well suited to resist a fighting army in medieval times. For the days when trumpets called to arms while a mailed force camped at its gates are long gone by, and the great buildings are given over to the thousands of tourists who come each year to see how the landmarks lived and to examine with curious interest the room of the great reformer.

Engineer Wilhelm is said to have a special fondness for the Wartburg. He makes occasional visits to the castle and occupies apartments, which are plain and simple in the extreme.

The original Wartburg was built by Ludwig the Springer in 1067-70 and was the residence of the Landgrave of Thuringia until the family ceased to exist in 1527, when it passed to other hands. Ludwig discovered the hill while on a hunting expedition. Attracted by the beauty of the scenery and by the isolated position which offered natural defenses, he examined it. "Wart, then, in colloquial sense Burg" (castle). "Walt, then, you shall be a castle." From this saving the name Wartburg is derived. It is said that his proprietorship was disputed by Herz von Plankenstein, who claimed title to the property. Ludwig must swear that he was erecting the building on ground owned by his father, and this he was able to do by having workmen carry earth from his own possession beyond dispute and scatter it on the site of the castle. History does not tell if his conscience ever troubled him, but his small voice did not call loudly in those stormy days of feudal lord and robber barons when "might was right." A famine prevailed in the land, so that many men were available for the construction of the castle and it was completed in three years. It consisted of two parts, the Volung and the Haupt, or Hofburg. In the tower is the so-called Ritterhaus, for the use of visiting knights and the main watch. The entrance is across a drawbridge over a deep moat and through a massive gateway, which was closed by two sets of heavy gates. To the right of the entrance are the quarters of the Schlosskammerherr, which are fitted up in fifteenth century style. On the second floor of the Ritter-haus are Luther's room and the "Pöckelner Stube," the latter being sent from Nuremberg by Grand Duchess Sophie in 1572. The furniture of the reformer is as he left it—the heavy writing table, the stone foot stool, the big green stove and the great bed, with its high posts. Against the wall is where the inkwell struck when he hurled it at the head of Satan. A great hole has been made in the plaster by relic hunters who have carried away souvenirs of Luther's anger at the devil. At the present rate of disappearance it will not be long before the entire wall crumbles to the onslaught. The stones could resist longer the crossbows and rams of olden times than the hordes of annual visitors, who number between 30,000 and 40,000.

The room is lighted by two little windows. Through these Luther could look out upon a landscape which presented a wealth of attractive features. He did not, however, enjoy his enforced stay at the castle and was glad to hasten away to Wittenberg.

Near by is the little, narrow, capboardlike "Stube," which was occupied by the reformer's friend, Wilhelm Pirkheimer of Nuremberg. A long, narrow hallway, ornamented with many pictures from the old German, leads to the "Reformation" room, the walls of which are adorned with 18 pictures painted by Dürer. The room, Linds and Struys. They represent scenes in the youth of the great reformer. He arrived at the castle, escorted by mailed knights; his departure as "Junker George" with a winter's growth of beard to conceal his identity; his trial before the court at Wittenberg; and others of equal interest in his stormy life. This room is shown to visitors only by special permission of the commandant.

Interest in the Wartburg must ever center about the picturesque building known as the "Landgrave's Hall." Its three stories high, and occupies a commanding part of the castle's site on top of the hill. The third floor is given over to the large festival hall, where the Arion society sang. It is a beautifully decorated room, with raftered ceiling and walls covered with symbolic pictures. Huge carved benches are ranged along the sides and tapestries are numerous. This hall is used only on especially festive occasions. Its appearance is entirely modern, although one of the benches is an original from the early days of the castle. The old building is not without its touch of humor. On the wall of the gallery leading to the festival hall are 20 pictures, representing the deaths of life in 100 years. They are:

Man's history: At ten years, a calf; at 20, a buck; at 30, a stork; at 40, a lion; at 50, a bear; at 60, a wolf; at 70, a dog; at 80, a cat; at 90, a donkey; at 100, an ox's death's head.

Woman's history: At ten years, a chick; at 20, a dove; at 30, a mare; at 40, a peacock; at 50, a hen; at 60, a goose; at 70, a vulture; at 80, an owl; at 90, a bat; at 100, a death's head with a hawk.

Street Railways in China. The problem of train traffic in a Chinese city presents peculiar difficulties. In view of the crowded condition of the streets and the lack of familiarity of the people with time-saving devices generally, the construction of a new railway system in Shanghai has been practically completed, although the current will be turned on at first only in sections where the inexperience of the Chinese drivers and conductors will be less likely to have bad effects. Upward of 24 miles of tracks have been laid, and the train routes have been divided into 11 sections, over which the passenger is entitled to travel—the first-class fare for one section being only 2 1/2 cents. Each car is divided into two compartments, not on a color basis, but rated according to fares paid.

Inland and Foreign Commerce. The total foreign commerce of the United States during 1907 amounted to $3,652,848,939. This is at the rate of $10,900,000 a day. The inland commerce of the United States last year probably amounted to at least $25,000,000,000, which is at the rate of $68,600,000 a day. The inland commerce is therefore nearly seven times as great as the foreign commerce.—Wall Street Journal.

So many queer things now happen every day that people have lost faith in miracles.

DRAWING A NET ABOUT NEMMER.

Strong Evidence Against Chicago Murder Suspect.

ENTICED BOYS TO ROOM.

Lad Whose Mutilated Body Was Found in River Entered Home of Man Accused of Killing Him When Last Seen Alive.—Police Take Up Murder of Another Boy a Year Ago, and Which Was Never Solved.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Startling information has been obtained by the police in their efforts to clear up the mystery of the murder of Tuffa Shashem, 13 years old, whose dismembered body was found recently in "Mud Lake," a part of the Chicago river.

August Cardorrell and Dominick Larnack, boys, testified to Police Inspector Dorman that young Shashem had on Sunday last, the day of his disappearance, entered the home of Hassan Nemmer, a Turk, now under arrest, in company with Nemmer. The boys waited half an hour for their companion to return, but finally got discouraged and left. That was the last they saw of the lad until his body was brought piecemeal to the morgue.

A weird touch was added to the story of the boys by a woman living opposite Nemmer's home. She declared that on Sunday night she was attracted by the howling of a dog, whose roars were pressed against the crack under the outer door of Nemmer's attic room. The dog acted as if he had struck a scent and was distressed because he could not follow it, the woman declared. She said presently a foot appeared from the doorway and the dog was kicked down the rocky stairs.

Nemmer is 60 years old, hardy in appearance. He made a living by peddling notions. His room at 102 Mather street is on the second floor of a dingy frame building. The room is reached by an outside stairway. It was in this room that the police discovered two saws and a bone knife, and on the bed, what seemed to be blood stains.

Nemmer, who spent most of yesterday undergoing an examination at the police station, explained the state in which he found the room, and said that similar marks on the saws were due to the fact that he saved soap boxes with them, it being his custom to cook his own meals.

Dozens of persons have been interviewed by police officers, among them being the fathers of several youths who had complained of Nemmer's peculiar advances toward them.

In connection with this case, the police have redirected their attention to the murder a year ago of Harry Kurpa, 15 years old, who lived in South Chicago, where Nemmer also lived then. The Kurpa boy, who had been mistreated, disappeared suddenly. Several weeks later his body was found in the Calumet river swamp.

John Dyer, 11 years old, told Inspector Dorman that he had been enticed to Nemmer's room, but had escaped after a struggle.

QUEER TIME TO STRIKE.

Albany, Aug. 8.—An unusual sight was witnessed here when, during the progress of a funeral, drivers on the highways suddenly jumped from their seats and refused to proceed unless the driver of the hearse, whom they elected was a non-union man, was replaced by a union driver. The undertaker finally secured another hearse and a union driver. The body was removed from one hearse to the other, and further complications were avoided.

OLD BANK TO LIQUIDATE.

Portland, Me., Aug. 8.—The National "Trusts" bank of this city, which was organized in 1832 as a state bank, has voted to liquidate its business. The reason given for the winding up of the affairs of the bank is that the present methods of doing business are not profitable in competition with the younger banks and trust companies.

FIREMEN'S SERVICES CLINCHED.

Have No Excuse for Joining the Canadian Pacific Railway Strikers.

Whitby, Man., Aug. 8.—A quiet preparation for a long siege on the side of the men and continued reticence regarding their intentions on the part of the railroad managers describe the Canadian Pacific strike situation. No large number of men has come into the city, although rumors continue to be rife that a large contingent is due soon.

The Canadian Pacific railway company has promoted all firemen who had been serving in the local roundhouse as wipers. This is a master stroke on the part of the company, as the placing of these men on locomotives means that every probable excuse for a strike on the part of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen has been removed. Were these men retained as wipers they would be required to assist strike-breaking mechanics. Should the company demand such service the local union could then have sufficient cause for declaring a strike and refusing to permit its members to aid non-union workmen. The pay of the promoted men will be nearly double that which they received as wipers.

THAW BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED.

Claims of Lawyers and Doctors Declared to Be Unjust.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed last night in the United States court by Attorney Mausemeyer of New York, representing Harry K. Thaw of this city.

In the petition Thaw states that his assets are $128,012 and his liabilities $155,410. Roger O'Mara, a Pittsburg detective and personal friend of the Thaw family, was appointed as receiver. His bond was placed at $200,000, and two business men of this city became security for O'Mara.

The most interesting information given in the petition asking for the appointment of a receiver is the allegation that the action is taken for the purpose of preventing his property being dissipated in litigation over claims, many of which are unjust. The figures in the bankruptcy petition show that this refers to the lawyers and doctors.

Thaw states that he is confined in jail in Dutchess county, N. Y., and is likely to be there for some time. He says some of his creditors have commenced suits against him and others are contemplating similar action. He is unable, he says, to give the attention his situation, owing to the confinement.

Thaw's friends here claim that he has already spent $100,000 in his two trials, and that he can spend no more, as he has no more. For some time past his relatives have been disputing the claims of some of Thaw's big creditors. One of those named in the petition just entered by Thaw is said to have received $100,000 already, yet to Thaw's mind he did more to injure his case in the murder trial than any other man.
